

The academic–distance association is small, negative, and stable across specifications

Coefficient on drive time to nearest residency program, per SD of log drive time (log-odds of vision-threatening disease)

Every specification points the opposite way to the access hypothesis, which predicts a positive coefficient. Adjustment does not move it toward zero, and its magnitude is a fraction of the social-vulnerability coefficient.